

Earth Changes Bulletin Update As Of September 10 2003

You have heard of the Weather Report? Here exclusively is this week's "Earth Report" - a short review of the "big picture" about how the dynamic changes in the Sun and the Earth are effecting our lives more and more intensely, with the latest prognostications and predictions for weathermen, farmers, investors, businessmen, and every man.

This update is keyed to the Earth Changes 2003 Almanac Calendar. The framework for understanding these updates and much of the current status information is maintained in capsule form in the Almanac at the locations cited in the text of this Update.

On the geophysical front, the Earth is quieting even as the Solar Vortex is quieting. Unrelated? Probably not. Sunspot Cycle 23 is clearly off the high peak and is collapsing now into small numbers (43 yesterday) and this fact can be seen already in the global weather radar charts. Only one last major summer storm round is over the Rocky Mountain Crests, probably the last of the storm fronts produced by the high sunspot peaks of August. To the West over the coast and the Pacific, nothing....the weather is calming everywhere and should normalize out by September 20. AND ONCE AGAIN quakes CONTINUED TO BE subdued and so was volcanic activity. Even so, the Earth's shape-shifting process, which became distinctly noticeable in July, continued though diminished with two quakes around the margin of the Antarctic Tectonic Plate one more in the Mid Pacific Rift Zone, By far, most of the quake activity this past week was in the Pacific Rim of Fire, eleven quakes ripped in New Zealand and several more ripped to the North of New Zealand, making this Eastern edge of the Antarctic Tectonic Plate the most active zone on Earth for the third week in a row

On the geopolitical front, suddenly all has changed as the river of time bends in a new direction once again. The strategic situation is crystallizing into clear patterns which are easy to perceive. A vast guerilla war in the Middle East was enjoined this past two weeks with the deliberate destruction of the "Roadmap For Peace" by Palestinian radicals and the resurfacing of Bin Laden with new promises of imminent major action in the new battleground of Iraq. Meanwhile the freefall of the Bush administration is accelerating and Bush telegraphed in his Sunday broadcast to the nation, at least to all those who read body language frankly, that he is unable to resolve what to do in Iraq and that he is personally exhausted about the entire subject. Meanwhile, more and more Western analysts are finally communicating what appears to be the plain truth: Bin Laden has snared the U.S. in the same strategic trap by which he bled the Soviet Union and ultimately prevailed over them in his conquest of Afghanistan. With nothing to gain from the occupation of Iraq, the U.S. is doomed to pay an enormous price every year for many years to obtain exactly nothing. Unfortunately Bush has so alienated much of the world, major nations want nothing to do with helping him extricate himself from Iraq. An American solution is thus "on hold" until the boot is given to the Imperial Faction and the regime in Washington DC is replaced. At minimum, this will gridlock American politics for the next 14 months.

Program Thesis: What are we trying to do with the Earth Changes Bulletin?

Most news media do not handle technical and scientific subjects like geology and earth sciences very well. They don't understand the causes and effects of activities in the Sun and Earth. Accordingly, they often do not understand if, when, how, why to report earthquakes, volcanic activity, global warming effects. The treatment often sounds absent-minded, poorly qualified, and frequently contains various technical errors. Seldom is the treatment entertaining and genuinely educational.

Based on new scientific principles which have emerged during the past thirty years, many of the dynamic activities of the Sun and Earth can be linked together to see how a range of effects are linked together. This makes it possible to paint "the big picture" into a perspective which explains many diverse events and processes, especially climate and weather patterns such as global warming and El Nino. From the "big picture", long range predictions can be made for weeks and even months ahead.

The result is sophisticated cutting-edge information which is objective, balanced, astute, relevant, and can be easily seen and appreciated by lay audiences. The perspective is generally global, seldom parochial. For the framework of concepts, terms, and current conditions which are used or described in these Bulletins, see the Earth Changes 2003 Almanac Calendar.

To see the internet resources which are used to prepare this Update, take a look at the Earth Monitor front page <http://www.michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor>.

If linked pages in this report require a password, you will need to subscribe to the earth changes bulletin. Those which require a password will be indicated. All such information is copyrighted, please do not copy the information on the internet. Let them subscribe. If the material does not require a password, the material is available for free and it may be freely copied on the internet.

HOUSEKEEPING:

THE COMING ECONOMIC COLLAPSE OF 2006, which puts today, tomorrow, and the trends together into the Cayce 25 year economic cycle which will "bottom" in 2006/2007. Download from

<http://www.michaelmandeville.com/calendar/collapse2006>

SPIRITUAL WATCH – AS OBSERVED LAST WEEK

The high sunspot peaks are excellent for meditation and expanding one's consciousness of the spiritual energies. Past peaks brought forth amazing energy and power into the lives of meditators, psychic attuners, and spiritually active healing practitioners. For more info: see <http://www.michaelmandeville.com/quest>

A great clearing of our psychic/emotional/group consciousness energy is apparently underway. August was a toughie on a lot of people with a lot ups and downs. Some of the confusion is still sticking. I am personally finding it difficult to get motivated to do anything, like promoting my new book which I very much need to do. Others tell me the same thing, though new alignments and new beginnings seem to be occurring in many lives.

I found August's meditations to be occasionally quite powerful and often quite murky and fogged out. This week I am finally feeling a clearing of the energy and my meditations seems to be flowing through less resistance.

Now that Solar Cycle 23 Peak is waning rapidly, I will be very interested in hearing how your own meditation is affected. Please share on the Phoenix Quest channel.

POLAR MOTION

What is happening to the motion of the Earth. For the overall summary of the status of polar motion GO TO:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm#polarmotion>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

To see the current graph of polar motion, see

http://www.michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/topten_monitor.htm

Scroll down the page until you get to the black and white graphs with show the x and y coordinates of the North Spin Axis on two separate graphs.

NO CHANGE THIS WEEK: Steady as she goes. As previously reported, a slow acceleration in the shifting of the poles has been underway for perhaps the past 100 years and the last three decades has shown an increase in the rate of acceleration.

MAGNETIC POLES – SHIFTING

What is happening to the magnetic fields of the Earth. For the overall summary of the status of the changes in the magnetic field GO TO:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm#earthfield>
(watch the word wrap on the URL)

NO CHANGE THIS WEEK: No news since last report: a slow acceleration of the rate of drift towards the spin axis is underway.

PLANETS

(all time coordinates here and elsewhere are in UTC unless otherwise noted)

For background and the current information on planetary alignments GO TO:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm#planets>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

See Earth Changes 2003 Almanac Calendar for additional details

<http://www.michaelmandeville.com/ebooks/calendar2003/>

The Almanac lays out the planets and the lunar phases for entire year in advance to allow you to find the best and worst periods of weather, earthquake activity, ethereal "lunar" influences, etc.

The Moon this day is in its South Node (South of the Earth's Equator) and the next Lunar Apogee is September 16 at 9:23 UTC some 404712 km from the Earth. (Perigee = the Moon's closest approach to the Earth during its monthly orbit which increases gravitational influence of the Moon by as much as 15%; Apogee = the Moon's greatest distance from the Earth during its monthly orbit).

This is the Full Moon September 10 (at 16:36 UTC) during a threeway alignment between Mercury | Earth | Mars – actually fourway because Uranus is technically closely aligned as well.

The Full Moon Syzygy window began yesterday and extends through to tomorrow. Currently, seismic activity has remained very low so far through this quake "window". (Normally Jim Berkland computes a syzygy window forecast for the full moon periods but has not done so for August or September. Berkland has a more complex formula for syzygy and his dates are often different.) For details see <http://www.syzygyjob.com/>

The next planetary alignment on (approximately) September 10 during a Full Moon will be composed of a "loose" alignment (not a strict straight line) between Mercury | Earth | Mars.

ALIGNMENTS FOR THE REMAINDER OF THE YEAR:

After the September fourway, the coast is clear, maybe literally on the West Coast of North America, until October 10 when Mercury | Venus. Then, beginning on November 25, Mercury will form alignments in December with many of the planets.

PLANET WATCHING:

For background and the current information on observable planets and planetary alignments GO TO:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm#planets>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

Mars is still easily visible during the early evening hours. Look to the East.

SUNSPOTS

The events in the solar atmosphere which impact weather and climate patterns, the magnetic field and auroras, including forecasts for the week, month, and year ahead. For background information, go to:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm#sunspots>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

To follow the numbers below, view the Solar Cycle 23 Chart at

http://www.michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/topten_monitor.htm

Or, get the data in a table from

<http://www.sec.noaa.gov/ftpdir/latest/DSD.txt>

BAD CALL: I expect that the average daily sunspot count will climb again and peak next sometime between now and September 10th for the Mercury | Earth | Mars | Uranus alignment.

GOOD CALL FROM LAST WEEK: THE PREDICTION ABOUT MAGNITUDE (of sunspot counts) MAY ALSO FIZZLE, even as Solar Cycle 23 is slowly fizzling.

The sunspot count last peaked at 110 on September 3 (this was probably the peak for the Mercury | Earth | Mars loose alignment) and they dipped slowly down to 43 by September 9. Solar Flux at 95 on September 9 was trending down at a modest pace, at just about the lowest it has been during the past three years.

This is a very very very good sign. Since we are some 41 months from the beginning of the peak, which is about as long as a peak (of average monthly counts above 100) as a sunspot cycle ever gets, it is likely this is a sign of the end of the peak in Cycle 23. The failure of this strong alignment of the inner planets to ignite a large surge in Solar activity, along with the sinking solar flux number, indicates and confirms rather convincingly that the peak of solar cycle 23 is in fact over.

MONTHLY AVERAGES IN SOLAR CYCLE 23: Over all, the sunspot average count (ISSN) for February was 46.4 and for March it rose to 61.5. The number for April was 60. May's average was 55. The average sunspot count (ISSN) for June, was 77.4 up nearly 50 percent over May. That is a highly significant deviation from the projected curve. The deviation increased in July with an average sunspot count of 85 but August averages came out a little lower at 72.7. September is predicted to fall off rapidly and average about 51.9 (These numbers are reported by Jan Alvestad).

As of this moment on August 27, the Solar Wind Speed is a brisk 666.3 km/s at this hour (about 2 PM, AZ time) AND it is pushing a very thin density of : 0.7 protons/cm³. These momentary fluctuations continue to mean little during these times. Currently the Fluxgate Charts at the University of Alaska (which measures magnetic disturbances in the Earth's atmosphere) shows some sizable fluctuations in the Earth's atmospheric magnetic field during the past 48 hours indicating that the Earth is sailing through a modestly stormy solar sea. To see the Fluxgate, go to <http://137.229.36.30/cgi-bin/magnetometer/plotstations.cgi?> (watch the word wrap on the URL)

NASA REPORTS & PREDICTS: "AURORA OUTLOOK: Earth is inside a gusty solar wind stream flowing from a coronal hole on the sun. Such streams often trigger widespread auroras, but probably not this time. The interplanetary magnetic field (IMF) near Earth is tilting north--a condition which discourages geomagnetic storms."

NASA predicts a very low probability of solar flares and storms today and tomorrow.

Jan Alvestad reports: "The geomagnetic field was quiet to active on September 9. Solar wind speed ranged between 444 and 717 km/sec under the influence of a high speed stream from coronal hole CH55.

Jan Alvestad predicts: "The geomagnetic field is expected to be unsettled to minor storm until September 11 under the influence of a high speed stream from coronal hole CH55. Quiet to active is likely on September 12 with quiet to unsettled expected for September 13-16." Alvestad goes on to predict that there is a low probability of any storm activity on the Sun. See <http://www.dxic.com/solar/>

EARTH WEATHER PREDICTION FOR THE NEXT SEVEN DAYS:

VERY GOOD NEWS: The Earth is rapidly shedding its excess ionic energy. The sudden collapse of Solar Cycle 23 into low numbers, despite the strong alignments of the inner planets this past two weeks, is allowing Earth's atmosphere to return to more ordered, more normal patterns.

The current major storm fronts in North America are passing over the crests of the Rocky Mountains and are headed rapidly to the Great Plains and Great Lakes states. A lot of moisture will be dropped along the way but these are the last major storm fronts shaped by sunspot activity. Most coastal regions are clear and this is likely caused by the atmosphere relaxing back to normal levels of energization.

THIS IS THE END OF THE MONSOON SEASON AND YOU CAN NOW EXPECT A LONG INDIAN SUMMER IN MOST OF THE NORTHERN HEMISPHERE WITH TYPICAL WET STORM TRACKS ACROSS THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST.

EARTH WEATHER PREDICTION FOR THE REMAINDER OF THE YEAR:

After about September 20, things should calm down, relatively, until the Oct 10 of alignment of Mercury | Venus kick up another 10 – 14 days of stormy weather. By October 20 the weather should normalize until right around the beginning of December. December should be pounded with storm after storm, probably producing many records in snowfall and coldness in the Northern Hemisphere, heat and fires in the Southern Hemisphere. The reason is a succession of alignments produced by Mercury, beginning with Venus on November 25. Hopefully the waning of average sunspot counts in Cycle 23 will produce less extremes this coming December than those of December 2002.

GLOBAL DROUGHT AND FLOOD WATCH

Stories and assessments about drought and flood conditions around the world; global information which provides the ability to assess the impacts to agriculture and the natural environment. For additional details, see <http://www.michaelmandeville.com/ebooks/calendar2003>

As predicted June 2002, gains are now short everywhere. All harvests have fallen off worldwide. Food prices will rise substantially during the next year. A combination inflationary (increased prices) and deflationary (production and job loss) double whammy will be added to all world economics.

SOUTHWEST CONDITIONS: MUCH BETTER for background or more details see

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm/#weather>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

Substantial relief CONTINUES along the Mogollon rim and into the Rockies from New Mexico up into Colorado. Relief is scattered and some areas, especially in the White Mountains area of Eastern Arizona and Western New Mexico, are in profuse wild flower blooms from the late monsoon.

EUROPE CONDITIONS

Conditions are rapidly moderating and all conditions should become normal in about two weeks.

EL NINO & LA NINA WATCH

watch is closed, all Pacific water activity is normal, we are between the extremes of the ENSO

CHEMTRAILS

For information, go to:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm#chemtrails>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

EARTHQUAKES

Around the world to see the current and potential patterns of seismic activity, with coverage of the windows of danger. I prepared this section by pulling out the Earth Changes 2003 Calendar which has everything plotted on it. You should too. Check out the Almanac as well, it discusses all of the windows for the year and even spotlights the two most dangerous windows. Unless otherwise specified, all quake activity which is discussed is based on the USGS database charts and tables which list quake activity in excess of 2.0 and above. FOR MORE QUAKE INFO RELATED TO SYZYGW WINDOWS, Jim Berkland calculates syzygy windows with considerably more sophistication than I do. See <http://syzygyjob.com>

Major quake activity was generally at low levels in both frequency and magnitude from the prior week, as one would expect from this mostly non syzygy period.

The Full Moon Syzygy began on September 8 but quake activity remains highly muted. The greatest number of quakes above 2.5, some 16, was on September 4. All the remaining of the last seven days have been highly diminished, quakes 2.5 mag. plus averaged less than 10 per day.

The Carib Plate settled down this week but as during the prior three weeks, New Zealand got hammered with about 11 quakes in the magnitude 4.0 to 6.0 range. In addition to the New Zealand hammering, several quakes in the range of mag. 4 to 6 struck to the North of New Zealand among the island nations of Fiji and the Loyalty Islands. These all sit on or close to the Eastern edge of the Australian Tectonic Plate and doubtless this edge was the world's most active tectonic zone this past month.

Two quakes above 5.0 at the margin of the Antarctic Tectonic Plate and another one in the East Pacific Rise, continued the shape shifting of the Earth, though at a much lower pace than prior weeks.

Remaining quake activity over 2.5 mag. was widely scattered almost entirely around the Pacific Rim of Fire.

AS REPORTED: At the moment I have "no correlate" for this shape-shifting. I cannot relate it to any particular trigger. For additional information about the significance of the rift quakes in relationship to the shifting of the poles, see the Earth Changes Bulletin Update for July 23, 2003.

CAYCE UPEHAVAL WATCH: AS MADE JULY 23: SPECULATIVE PREDICTION FOR WATCHING AND LEARNING: AS A RESPONSE TO THE JULY/AUGUST SHAPESHIFTING EVENT, WITHIN NEXT TWO to 12 MONTHS VOLCANIC ACTIVITY IN ICELAND, JAN MAYAN, AND ALL VOLCANISM ASSOCIATED WITH THE CARIBBEAN TECTONIC PLATE, INCLUDING THE VOLCANOES IN CENTRAL MEXICO WILL SHOW A MAJOR INCREASE IN EMISSIONS AND ERUPTIVE BEHAVIORS.

TO DATE: no significant response

THE WEEK'S MOST SIGNIFICANT QUAKES

In addition to the 11 quakes which continued to rock New Zealand, without doubt the most interesting quakes of the week were the shape shifting quakes around the edge of the Antarctic Tectonic Plate and in the East Pacific Rift.

Magnitude 5.7 SOUTH SANDWICH ISLANDS REGION

2003 September 06 15:46:59 UTC

Preliminary Earthquake Report

http://neic.usgs.gov/neis/bulletin/neic_yjba.html

U.S. Geological Survey, National Earthquake Information Center

World Data Center for Seismology, Denver

Magnitude 5.7

Date-Time Saturday, September 06, 2003 at 15:46:59 (UTC) - Coordinated Universal Time

Saturday, September 06, 2003 at 01:46:59 PM local time at epicenter

Time of Earthquake in other Time Zones

Location 57.32S 25.70W

Depth 33.0 kilometers

Region SOUTH SANDWICH ISLANDS REGION

Reference 115 km (70 miles) SE of Visokoi Island, South Sandwich Islands

195 km (120 miles) NNE of Bristol Island, South Sandwich Islands

3510 km (2180 miles) SE of BUENOS AIRES, Argentina

Magnitude 6.1 CENTRAL EAST PACIFIC RISE

2003 September 06 02:08:13 UTC

Preliminary Earthquake Report

http://neic.usgs.gov/neis/bulletin/neic_yjae.html

U.S. Geological Survey, National Earthquake Information Center

World Data Center for Seismology, Denver

Magnitude 6.1

Date-Time Saturday, September 06, 2003 at 02:08:13 (UTC) - Coordinated Universal Time

Friday, September 05, 2003 at 07:08:13 PM local time at epicenter

Time of Earthquake in other Time Zones

Location 4.68S 106.02W

Depth 10.0 kilometers

Region CENTRAL EAST PACIFIC RISE

Reference 2910 km (1810 miles) W of Guayaquil, Ecuador

Following in line with this mostly non syzygy window period, quake activity was muted in North America but slightly up from the prior week. The USGS charts (such charts show all quakes 1.0 and above) for the U.S. and Alaska show 410 quakes for the past seven days (up slightly from 390 last week).

All other charts and numbers were contrarian and showed a decrease in seismic activity during the past seven days.

The USGS chart for California/Nevada shows 230 quakes in California/Nevada during the past seven days (down 247 from last week). The USGS Chart for the Pacific Northwest reveals 32 quakes (two week sum, down from 48 last week) widely scattered throughout Washington State. Hood was silent. The Rocky Mountain Cordillera had 15 quakes scattered throughout Utah (down from 24 last week). The USGS Chart of Yellowstone Caldera Area showed 28 microquakes during the last week (down from 36 last week), tiny 1.0 microquakes widely scattered around the entire area and around the borders of Yellowstone National Park. In the same vein, the USGS chart for Long Valley Caldera (Area) showed a running total of 19 (down from 24 last week).

VOLCANOES

Around the world with the most interesting and relevant volcano stories; briefs on the likely eruptions as well as coverage of on-going activity. For information on current eruptions, see the Southwest Volcano Centre at:

<http://www.swvrc.org/cerupt.htm>

or see "Breaking Volcano Eruption News" at <http://www.volcanolive.com/volcanolive.html>

ARE THE VOLCANIC FIELDS RESPONDING TO THE EARTH'S SHAPE SHIFTING EVENT OF JULY-AUGUST-SEPTEMBER 2003?

NOT AT THE MOMENT.

During the past week overall volcanic activity clearly declined. The Southwest Volcano Centre reports 34 volcanoes on the alert status list (down from last week), 6 volcanoes on the restless list (same last week), and 20 on the active eruption list (same last week). Even Popo is nearly mute.

MOST ACTIVE VOLCANOES (& OTHER NEWS) THIS WEEK:

13 August 2003 from Volcano Breaking News

at <http://www.volcanolive.com/volcanolive.html>

Well, let see, uh, well, there is always Popo.

El Popo gave only a 4 puff day. Centrapred reports for September 10 (16:00 GMT) that "In the last 24 hours the monitoring system of Popocatepétl volcano recorded 4 low intensity exhalations, mainly accompanied by steam and gas. The other monitored parameters remain without important changes. At the moment of this report we can see the volcano with a small steam and gas emission."

Despite the continued spread of "dramatic" information about the volcanic changes at work in Yellowstone, a super volcano eruption is not likely there for quite a while, say tens of thousand of years. The reason is simple. To have enough material piled on top of it to blow ash and debris for great distances, Yellowstone probably needs thousands of years to build up a massive cone like Etna, Mona Loa, or Tahoma. Tahoma (stupid white men misname it Rainier) is much more likely to blow a super eruption from its nearly 15,000 foot pile of lava and ash than Yellowstone is.

The eruption to watch for in Yellowstone is an explosive eruption more on the scale of St. Helens and then the extrusion of lava sheets over a period of thousands of years, like Kilauea and Mona Loa, slowly building up a high cone with multiple vents.

But we are no where near that condition. It will take probably several months of steadily rising indicators and microtremor swarms to get serious about expecting a serious eruption at Yellowstone. For the meanwhile, Yellowstone settled down this week like all other zones.

ECONOMIC WATCH

For background information, use password to go to:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/ebooks/statusreports/statusreports.htm#economics>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

FORECAST THIS WEEK

use password to go to:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/ebooks/statusreports/statusreports.htm#forecastweek>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

AS REPORTED LAST FEW WEEKS: A small bubble is finally trying to form up despite a lot of dire news and major contradictions, not the least of which is another month of reports of huge job losses. Sure GNP is up, but without an increase in jobs, it is real obvious what is going on. Part of the gain represents money turnover from mortgage refinancing and higher stock values, part of the gain represents the huge flow of money from the U.S. treasury to corporate warhogs and thence to China and other points abroad for war goods and services.

Americans everywhere are waking up to the fact that the super elite has permanently sliced them out of the economy but the mass media still is fronting phony illusions and hopeful noises from yesteryear's mantras. It will likely take another several months to a year for the poodles in the lapdog press to catch the real drift of our affairs. .

AS PREVIOUSLY REPORTED – LITTLE CHANGE: Bull noises are getting louder and louder and recovery is the current mantra in the economic news. But Bears keep pointing out that there is almost no recovery in job expansion underway, leading them to suggest that the giant international sucking sound in the U.S. economy is just getting louder and louder as the U.S. economy hemorrhages into China.

GENERAL PREDICTION DJI AVERAGES:

for detailed predictions, use password to go to:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/ebooks/statusreports/statusreports.htm#stocks>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

Recent closings of the DJI:

Not much movement, a definite stalling. Stocks inched upwards today with the DJI closing today, September 10, 2003, at 9,503, down from last week. The DJI closed last Friday, September 5, at 9,420, almost dead on the previous Friday.

AS PREVIOUSLY PREDICTED: Expect sharp mood swings to jack the DJI up and down by 200 points in as little as a few hours. Over all, I believe that the Bear position is more soundly based in today's facts and this position seems to be "closing ranks".

This week's stalling of the market is a good proof of the pudding.

Expect only a little real average increase during the next few months. Flat line then, more or less, until after Christmas. Strong Christmas season sales may bring the DJI up a few hundred more points past 10,000 during the first several months of 2004. This may be the last of the "recovery bubble", which will probably break for good by late Fall 2004, just after the elections.

After losing the elections, the Imperial Faction cliques who are attempting to hold onto the U.S. government may “give up” the contrivances which are maintaining the “bubble”. Thus they may be forced to allow the “masks” to fall away. The winning President (who probably will not be Bush) and the nation will finally realize the truth about an economy which is floundering horribly with a bad case of giant sucking sounds.

EURO WATCH

for detailed predictions, use password to go to:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/ebooks/statusreports/statusreports.htm#euro>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

two weeks ago one euro = US $0.9005

one week ago one euro = US $0.9215

will week, one euro = US $0.9226 per

FIRST CLASS RIGHT ON THE MONEY CALL FROM LAST WEEK: Bears are pretty united in supposing that this is as far as the value of the dollar is going to increase. With the growing realization that the Chinese will not revalue their currency, expect the dollar now to soften. Accordingly, NOW IS THE TIME TO SELL DOLLARS.

Along with the STALLING of stock values, the value of the dollar lost nearly 3 cents, closing out at $0.8924 per euro on September 10 as opposed to the $0.9226 per euro the previous Wednesday..

WAS I RIGHT OR WAS I RIGHT????? A MILLION DOLLARS OF MARGINED EURO MONEY WOULD HAVE MADE A WONDERFULLY QUICK DOLLAR KILLING ON THIS ADVICE. WATCH IT DEEPEN. I THINK EVERY ASTUTE PLAYER ON THE WORLD STAGE NOW REALIZES THAT BUSH HAS A DEAD HAND AND THE DOLLAR HAS NO WHERE TO GO BUT DOWN.

MUST READ: “The Dollar Panics” in “The Coming Economic Collapse of 2006”, which lays out the dynamics of what is happening.

see <http://www.michaelmandeville.com/calendar/collapse2006.htm>

JOB WATCH

I CANNOT FIND ANY OPTIMISTIC REPORTS ABOUT JOB EXPANSION IN THE U.S. IF YOU KNOW OF ANY, LET ME KNOW.

AS REPORTED: The job situation will probably remain bleak throughout this year unless you have a clean background and are willing to work for less than $10/hr. in the burgeoning security industry or for $7.00 at Wallie World.

UNKNOWN SECRET FACT: Northern Arizona and New Mexico have not suffered much of the recession and continue to expand economically. The economy is driven by people moving in to retire to escape the urban war zones. Good location for contractors, builders, wood products, and new wave or new paradigm shops, health, etc. Inquire of the Quest family.

A SOON TO BE WIDELY DISCUSSED FACT: The battleground for fixing America is Wallie World – Walmart. It has become an insufferable bully by aggregating vast wealth through systematic abuse of American workers. Everything which is wrong about America can be found at Wallie World. To fix America, start there.

HEALTH WATCH

– No new status-changing alerts

GEO-POLITICAL WATCH

How are the sunspots likely to most effect human affairs during the weeks and months ahead?

SIGN OF THE TIMES: Ken Lay, who is now widely described as the biggest corporate swindler of all time, is still scott free and has never even been indicted.

IT IS NOW TIME TO ARREST AND SHACKLE THOSE WHO HAVE FAILED TO ARREST KEN LAY (WHO IS ONE OF THE WORST ECONOMIC TERRORISTS OF ALL TIME). THE DAMAGE HE HAS CREATED IN PEOPLE'S LIVES CONTINUES ON TO THIS VERY MOMENT IN SUCH THINGS AS THE CALIFORNIA RECALL CIRCUS.

GLOBAL MEDIA WATCH ON PHONY MANIPULATION:

SAMO AS LAST WEEK, PREDOMINATELY – Arnold the man to beat and Dean, the TV pundit anointed “hottest candidate”. These are entirely phony illusions at best and exercises in class bigotry and racism at worst by a small set of yuppie boomer East coast bubbleheads. Take national TV out of California recall and the entire drama will collapse into a voter rejection of a stupid idea, esp. with the promise of Democrats to moderate the huge vehicle license tax hike which Grey stupidly set in motion. It effectively disenfranchised large numbers of people from being able to purchase new or late model used cars.

The latest play of media sorcery is a dramatic restatement of the confusion of 911 Al Qaeda terrorist activity with the situation in Iraq. Bush grandly announced on Sunday last that Iraq is now the center stage of the war on terrorism.

There was utterly no connection but stupidity could force a connection to be made. THE CENTER OF THE WAR ON TERRORISM IS IN PALESTINE. THE WAR MUST BE FOUGHT THERE PRIMARILY BY MAKING PEACE THERE.

How do I know this? Elementary Dr. Sherlock Holmes. Almost all the Arabs and Muslims in the world will tell you that, if you listen. They know what they are talking about. The inability of the Western nations to create a solution in Palestine is a precise measure of the failure of the Western mind to cognize reality and the worthlessness of its remaining values. Western culture appears to be utterly exhausted both emotionally and intellectually and no longer knows how to engage real people in making real solutions for their lives.

Along with this elementary but profound strategic confusion by Bush and his Imperial Faction, we find a restatement of a ludicrously impossible proposition which is doomed to utter failure. America is going to spend untold tens of billions of dollars to rebuild Iraq and create a democracy for its people. But Bush and his cronies have not a clue to what a democracy is nor how you create one. The only art of governance they have learned is deception, lying, and gross manipulation of people by the expenditure of huge sums of money.

Certainly there is no functional democracy in the U.S. which might serve as a guide. The best Bush and his cronies can achieve is a plutocracy (like them) but this is not going to sell very well. The Iraqi society is thoroughly socialistic on the Stalinist model, based on sharing the oil money. Plutocratic crony capitalism will never succeed in the country, all it will do is bring down the same result which the plutocratic Shah of Iran brought down, an extreme religious revolution on the right, or what Hussein originally created, a Bolshevik takeover from the left.

Take your pick, that is some of the depth to the quagmire in Iraq. It is real deep and you can fall into it for a hundred years of struggle. Do you want to start easing into it what is left of American affluence?

“IONIZING SOLAR ACTIVITY” & MASS BEHAVIOR

FORECAST ON MASS BEHAVIOR: Random acts of senseless violence will begin to abate.

THE STRATEGIC SITUATION:

For predictions related to the mess in Palestine, the Middle East, and the Bush political era, check out http://www.michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports_political.htm#strategic (watch the word wrap on the URL)

The good news is that China and Russia are actively taking over the creation of solutions for the North Korea situation. It should be obvious that both of these countries have more real danger from Korean nukes than the U.S. Accordingly, I believe we can invest some trust in the coming of an “Asian solution”

The second good news is that NATO is beginning slowly to take on the entire task of rebuilding Afghanistan. The Euro countries are far more likely, with their understanding of social policies and community building, to be far more effective at making Afghan society work than the plutocratic dimwits of the American corporate elite.

The bad news is that Bin Laden and Al Qaeda has George Bush and the American Imperial Legions exactly where he wants them. The die has been cast by the emotional reactions which were engendered during the high peak of Sunspot Cycle 23. The Al Qaeda War Plan has successfully set and baited its trap in the Mid East and the Imperial Faction has walked right in with scarcely a second thought. Despite the drop in sunspots, expect a larger escalation yet during the next 15 days in ORGANIZED PROFESSIONAL TERRORIST violence, active guerilla warfare with bombings and sabotage. There after, a major protracted war will now be professionally fought with escalating violence quite aside from sunspot numbers and emotional reactions.

Last week I asked: “The big question mark is the X factor. It’s out there, is it Al Qaeda? What’s the next step in their plan to drive Americans into increasingly blind emotional reactivity similar to the overbearing and violent tactics (putting many bystanders in harms way) which Israel is using to strike Hamas officials?”

The X factor is indeed Osama Bin Laden, who resurfaced this last few days with new video and audio tapes. Bin Laden suddenly releases a tape which confirms that Iraq is indeed the new battleground. How clever. He announces that he has broadened the conflict from a few million Palestinians to a few tens of millions of Iraqi’s.

In this we see how either how profoundly brilliant or lucky Bin Laden is and how profoundly stupid Bush is. Actually I think Bin Laden is both brilliant AND profoundly lucky to have such a incompetent adversary.

Once again, Bin Laden has scored a major victory based on his assessments of the mind and character of the American elite and how it is likely to act internationally. He has succeeded in fulfilling his strategic war plan. He has successfully united radical groups from Morocco to Indonesia to work in concert against all Euro and American interests and he has succeeded in drawing the U.S. into a vast guerilla war stretching from Gaza to India by trapping American troops into a thankless and bloody occupation of Iraq and Afghanistan. In this war the U.S. will never GAIN anything as the guerillas slowly force a greater and greater mobilization of American resources into a widening black hole of greater and greater violence.

GET THIS:

AMERICANS SET UP BIN LADEN TO WAGE EXACTLY THIS TYPE OF STRATEGIC WAR OF ATTRITION AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION IN AFGHANISTAN. THE CIA "SCHOOLED" BIN LADEN AND MANY OF HIS HENCHMEN ABOUT MANY ASPECTS OF CONDUCTING SUCH A LONG TERM STRUGGLE. IN THE COURSE OF THIS, BIN LADEN CAME INTO INTIMATE KNOWLEDGE OF HOW THE AMERICAN MILITARY MIND WORKS AND THE LOGIC OF ITS OPERATIONS METHODS. THE SOVIETS NEVER LOST A SINGLE BATTLE IN AFGHANISTAN BUT THE COST OF CONTINUAL FIGHTING OVER MANY YEARS BLED THE RUSSIANS SO EFFECTIVELY THAT IT CONTRIBUTED TO GORBACHOV'S DECISION TO PULL BACK THE SOVIET UNION AND LET THE COMMUNIST EMPIRE COLLAPSE.

YOU DON'T SUPPOSE, DO YOU, THAT IT MIGHT OCCUR TO BIN LADEN TO USE THE SAME STRATEGY AGAINST THE AMERICANS?

DUH, get with the picture Dude.

The current debate about the huge cost of spending more money in Iraq, the so-called $87 billion or whatever phony number is being used, IS IRRELEVANT.

THINK. AND TAKE ACTION TO INSURE A COMPLETE STRATEGIC REGIME AND ORIENTATION CHANGE IN THE MANAGEMENT OF AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. And for God sakes I hope you don't lend support to two-timing Republicrat Senators. Who among them is not seriously ethically challenged with the whoppers they have been living with this past generation in their support and feeding of the expansion of the not-so-invisible Black Arts Nation? Damn few.

We are bouncing around right now in just the beginning phase of the rapids in this turn of the river. It will take all of September to get through this stretch of transformation. Keep meditating or praying to keep your center of balance in the Higher Being.