

Earth Changes Bulletin Update As Of September 17 2003

You have heard of the Weather Report? Here exclusively is this week's "Earth Report" - a short review of the "big picture" about how the dynamic changes in the Sun and the Earth are effecting our lives more and more intensely, with the latest prognostications and predictions for weathermen, farmers, investors, businessmen, and every man.

This update is keyed to the Earth Changes 2003 Almanac Calendar. The framework for understanding these updates and much of the current status information is maintained in capsule form in the Almanac at the locations cited in the text of this Update.

On the geophysical front, the Earth is still quieting even as the Solar Vortex stays fairly muted. Volcanism, quake activity, weather patterns, mainly muted to normal. But 15 more quakes ripped New Zealand and several more ripped to the North of New Zealand, making this Eastern edge of the Antarctic Tectonic Plate still the most active zone on Earth for the third week in a row. For weather, for the West over the coast and the Pacific, nothing.....the weather in the Western portion of North America is calming everywhere and should normalize out by September 20. In the East, the approaching hurricane is weakening, probably by the influence of a mild increase in the sunspot count and ionic influx. The energy input expands the storm activity over a wider area, thus weakening the winds. But even so, a foot of water will descend over much of the Eastern Seaboard while very high tidal forces batter the shorelines.

On the geopolitical front, a vast guerilla war in the Middle East was enjoined this past two weeks with the deliberate destruction of the "Roadmap For Peace" by Palestinian radicals and the resurfacing of Bin Laden with new promises of imminent major action in the new battleground of Iraq. Meanwhile the freefall of the Bush administration continues to accelerate and much of the press is now, like much of the world, openly referring to the U.S. National government as a cabal managed by liars. Meanwhile, more and more Western analysts are finally communicating what appears to be the plain truth: Bin Laden has snared the U.S. in the same strategic trap by which he bled the Soviet Union and ultimately prevailed over them in his conquest of Afghanistan. Unfortunately Bush has so alienated much of the world, an American solution may be "on hold" until the boot is given to the Imperial Faction and the regime in Washington DC is replaced. Irony of ironies, Central Casting has sent up a General, Wesley Clark, who proposes to boot the Faction and radically realign American policy in concert with the Euros while pursuing an aggressive progressive agenda. The force of such a candidacy is extremely useful, whether he succeeds or not. He is the one Democrat who can face down Bush and the entire gang, call them wrong to their faces, and have 90 percent of the press and 70 percent of the U.S. believe him. It may open up the gridlock and lead to a quicker resolution for a winning solution in Iraq..

Program Thesis: What are we trying to do with the Earth Changes Bulletin?

Most news media do not handle technical and scientific subjects like geology and earth sciences very well. They don't understand the causes and effects of activities in the Sun and Earth. Accordingly, they often do not understand if, when, how, why to report earthquakes, volcanic activity, global warming effects. The treatment often sounds absent-minded, poorly qualified, and frequently contains various technical errors. Seldom is the treatment entertaining and genuinely educational.

Based on new scientific principles which have emerged during the past thirty years, many of the dynamic activities of the Sun and Earth can be linked together to see how a range of effects are linked together. This makes it possible to paint "the big picture" into a perspective which explains many diverse events and processes, especially climate and weather patterns such as global warming and El Nino. From the "big picture", long range predictions can be made for weeks and even months ahead.

The result is sophisticated cutting-edge information which is objective, balanced, astute, relevant, and can be easily seen and appreciated by lay audiences. The perspective is generally global, seldom parochial. For the framework of concepts, terms, and current conditions which are used or described in the these Bulletins, see the Earth Changes 2003 Almanac Calendar.

To see the internet resources which are used to prepare this Update, take a look at the Earth Monitor front page <http://www.michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor>.

If linked pages in this report require a password, you will need to subscribe to the earth changes bulletin. Those which require a password will be indicated. All such information is copyrighted, please do not copy the information on the internet. Let them subscribe. If the material does not require a password, the material is available for free and it may be freely copied on the internet.

HOUSEKEEPING:

THE COMING ECONOMIC COLLAPSE OF 2006, which puts today, tomorrow, and the trends together into the Cayce 25 year economic cycle which will "bottom" in 2006/2007. Download from <http://www.michaelmandeville.com/calendar/collapse2006>

SPIRITUAL WATCH – AS OBSERVED LAST WEEK

The high sunspot peaks are excellent for meditation and expanding one's consciousness of the spiritual energies. Past peaks brought forth amazing energy and power into the lives of meditators, psychic attuners, and spiritually active healing practitioners. For more info: see <http://www.michaelmandeville.com/quest>

The energy seems to be flowing cleaner and clearer with a little depth added this last two days by another modest rising of the sunspot counts. I hope they don't go too high this time. Meditation is improving with greater focus and ease.

The forces of illusion, delusion, and deception seem to be falling away everywhere. The entertainers and faux-celebrities are seemingly more and more threadbare and irrelevant as emotional reactions become seen more and more for what they are. Substance seems to be coalescing into stronger positions and sharper images, more and more people are waking up slowly from the head banger party of the last few years under the mighty stimulus of Solar Cycle 23 Peak, which is now breaking up.

Even the no-name, no-nothing right wing Potomac pundits are being labeled as such by the media which used to toot their off-hand pontifications as profound policy insights.

Better pass the hangover pills for last night's war party revelers. In the light of the new day which has come after the Sunspot binge, many are beginning to realize, after the mask was removed, that they had taken the biggest ugly in town to bed with them. That is making for a very unpleasant morning-after, but wait till someone brings by the bill for their having puked all over Club Iraq after trashing out its windows last night.

Meanwhile, hark! What is that in the distance?

Many bands are marching from many directions...the progressives and populists of the prairies and hinterland are on the march. They are mad as hell and they are pouring out exposes galore, books, magazines, new media, stump speeches, candidates, new parties, more activity than since the '60's. I am sure glad I am not on their list. All American politics next year will blow in gale force political winds.

And this is just the beginning...

Remember, meditation is how you compose yourself and find your own center and truth. There ain't no other way. DO IT!!!

POLAR MOTION

What is happening to the motion of the Earth. For the overall summary of the status of polar motion GO TO:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm#polarmotion>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

To see the current graph of polar motion, see

http://www.michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/topten_monitor.htm

Scroll down the page until you get to the black and white graphs with show the x and y coordinates of the North Spin Axis on two separate graphs.

AS PREVIOUSLY: Steady as she goes. As previously reported, a slow acceleration in the shifting of the poles has been underway for perhaps the past 100 years and the last three decades has shown an increase in the rate of acceleration.

NEW THIS WEEK: We are clearly past the X Max of this last 7 year cycle of Chandler's Wobble and the track now clearly shows a definite "tightening" of the spiral. It never reached the diameter of the last X Max and the track is now tightening up very rapidly. The track of the spin axis is once again entering into the same quadrant of the earth (between about Long. East 30 and East 40 where we first noticed a major truncation and sudden displacement in the track of the wobble in December 1998.

It looks like the truncation may show up very prominently, demonstrating that the North Pole of the spin axis is strongly resisting movement down this quadrant towards the Atlantic. It is as if the net balance of the forces of the spinning Earth once again seeks to fling the spin axis towards the Pacific. Or, to say the same thing, the Pacific Hemisphere of the Earth's crust appears to be more strongly pushed up over the Spin Axis towards the Atlantic side than towards the opposite direction at the current time.

This suggests of course that the heaviest half of the Earth is actually somewhere between West 90 and East 90.

This may be counter to my long standing thesis that the Earth is most probably going to avalanche up Longitude East 40. If one went by this new line of reasoning exclusively, which is not necessarily wise, one could hypothesize that the direction of the next avalanche will be approximately (quite roughly) in the direction of Long. East 135, which would bring the new North Pole over Eastern Siberia high in the mountains quite close to Manchuria or Mongolia.

This will satisfy quite a bit of the Cayce predictions, but not all of them. Most especially, it would require that North America broadside straight into the Atlantic, which will absolutely NOT allow Virginia Beach to be a safety land during the avalanche. Rather, everything will be scoured clean, clear up to the Appalachian and other mountains along the Eastern Seaboard.

Well, we shall see what we shall see. I remain convinced that the best speculative choice is still Long. East 40.

MAGNETIC POLES – SHIFTING

What is happening to the magnetic fields of the Earth. For the overall summary of the status of the changes in the magnetic field GO TO:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm#earthfield>
(watch the word wrap on the URL)

NO CHANGE THIS WEEK: No news since last report: a slow acceleration of the rate of drift towards the spin axis is underway.

PLANETS

(all time coordinates here and elsewhere are in UTC unless otherwise noted)

For background and the current information on planetary alignments GO TO:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm#planets>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

See Earth Changes 2003 Almanac Calendar for additional details

<http://www.michaelmandeville.com/ebooks/calendar2003/>

The Almanac lays out the planets and the lunar phases for entire year in advance to allow you to find the best and worst periods of weather, earthquake activity, ethereal "lunar" influences, etc.

The Earth Fall Equinox (equal length of day and night) is on September 23 at 10 47 (UTC).

The Moon this day is in its North Node (South of the Earth's Equator) and we are just one day past the Lunar Apogee some 404712 km from the Earth. (Perigee = the Moon's closest approach to the Earth during its monthly orbit which increases gravitational influence of the Moon by as much as 15%; Apogee = the Moon's greatest distance from the Earth during its monthly orbit).

The next New Syzygy window will begin September 24, one day after the Fall Equinox, and it will extend to September 29. The next New Moon is September 26, 3:09 (UTC). (Normally Jim Berkland computes a syzygy window forecast for the full moon periods but has not done so for August or September. Berkland has a more complex formula for syzygy and his dates are often different.) For details see <http://www.syzygyjob.com/>

ALIGNMENTS FOR THE REMAINDER OF THE YEAR:

The next planetary alignment on (approximately) September 30 with Mercury | Saturn. This will be followed on October 10 with Mercury | Jupiter, which may be probably the most productive of sunspots. Then, beginning on November 25, Mercury will form alignments in December with many of the planets.

PLANET WATCHING:

For background and the current information on observable planets and planetary alignments GO TO:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm#planets>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

Mars is still easily visible during a great portion of the evening hours. Look to the East or nearly directly overhead.

SUNSPOTS

The events in the solar atmosphere which impact weather and climate patterns, the magnetic field and auroras, including forecasts for the week, month, and year ahead. For background information, go to:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm#sunspots>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

To follow the numbers below, view the Solar Cycle 23 Chart at

http://www.michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/topten_monitor.htm

Or, get the data in a table from

<http://www.sec.noaa.gov/ftpdir/latest/DSD.txt>

The sunspot count fell to 41 on September 10 and has slowly been rising all week to stand at 87 on September 16, when the solar flux was at 100, also slowly rising. Sunspots may continue to float up slightly for a few days and then drop again to low levels by the end of the month

MONTHLY AVERAGES IN SOLAR CYCLE 23: Over all, the sunspot average count (ISSN) for February was 46.4 and for March it rose to 61.5. The number for April was 60. May's average was 55. The average sunspot count (ISSN) for June, was 77.4 up nearly 50 percent over May. That is a highly significant deviation from the projected curve. The deviation increased in July with an average sunspot count of 85 but August averages came out a little lower at 72.7. September is predicted to fall off rapidly and average about 51.9 (These numbers are reported by Jan Alvestad).

As of this moment on August 27, the Solar Wind Speed is a robustly brisk 754.5 km/s at this hour (about 2 PM, AZ time) BUT it is pushing a thin density of 1.5 protons/cm³. These momentary fluctuations continue to mean little during these times. Currently the Fluxgate Charts at the University of Alaska (which measures magnetic disturbances in the Earth's atmosphere) shows severe disturbances in the Earth's atmospheric magnetic field all over the graph during the last 48 hours which indicates that the Earth is sailing through a very gusty stormy solar sea at the current time.

To see the Fluxgate, go to <http://137.229.36.30/cgi-bin/magnetometer/plotstations.cgi?>
(watch the word wrap on the URL)

Despite the choppy solar sea, solar activity is relatively calm.

NASA REPORTS & PREDICTS: "AURORA WATCH: A moderate geomagnetic storm is underway. Sky watchers in Canada, Alaska and northern US states such as Wisconsin, Michigan and Washington should be alert for auroras after nightfall. This activity could continue for two or three days--the result of a favorably positioned coronal hole on the sun and a south-pointing interplanetary magnetic field near Earth."

NASA predicts a very low probability of solar flares and storms today and tomorrow but suggests close to even odds on substantial magnetic disturbances from the blustery solar wind

Jan Alvestad reports: "The geomagnetic field was quiet to major storm on September 16. Solar wind speed ranged between 349 and 562 km/sec. The disturbance which began after 18h UTC on September 15 intensified as the interplanetary magnetic field at times was strongly southwards. Towards the end of the day high speed streams from coronal holes CH56 and CH58 began to dominate the solar wind. At midnight there were 5 spotted regions on the visible disk. Solar flare activity was moderate. A total of 4 C and 1 M class events was recorded during the day. A C1.4 flare at 05:25 and a long duration M1.3 event peaking at 22:24 UTC appears to have had its origin just behind the southwest limb. September 14-16: No potentially geoeffective CMEs observed."

Jan Alvestad predicts: "Small coronal holes (CH56 and CH58) near the equator were in geoeffective positions on September 13 and appeared to close on September 14. A large recurrent trans equatorial coronal hole (CH57) will rotate into a geoeffective position on September 14-17. CH57 decreased substantially in size on September 16, particularly in the northern and western sections. A small coronal hole (CH59) in the southern hemisphere could rotate into a geoeffective position on September 18-19. The geomagnetic field is expected to be unsettled to minor storm until September 20 with a possibility of occasional major storm intervals on September 17 and 18 when the most intense part of a high speed stream from coronal hole CH57 will dominate the solar wind." See <http://www.dxlc.com/solar/>

EARTH WEATHER PREDICTION FOR THE NEXT SEVEN DAYS:

THE NEWS REMAINS VERY GOOD: The Earth is rapidly shedding its excess ionic energy.

The Pacific Coastline remains clear, storm tracks across the PNW remains about right, the jet stream is where it ought to be, the Southwest is drying out but also cooling down. IT'S FALL. This is likely caused by the atmosphere relaxing back to normal levels of energization.

THIS IS THE END OF THE MONSOON SEASON AND YOU CAN NOW EXPECT A LONG INDIAN SUMMER IN MOST OF THE NORTHERN HEMISPHERE WITH TYPICAL WET STORM TRACKS ACROSS THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE EAST COAST:

The modest increase in sunspot numbers this past 48 hours and quickening of the ionic wind has PROBABLY AMELIORATED HURRICANE ISABEL.

The ionic influx partially re-energized the atmosphere, causing a rapid expansion of the atmosphere over the Atlantic which increased the size of the hurricane track and increased the elevation of the upper storm mass, all of which acted to slow down the swirling air mass.

So instead of a Class Five Act, you are going to get a big wet and sloppy Class Two Act.

MAN OH WOMAN ALIVE, YOU FOLKS ARE GOING TO GET WETTER THAN YOU WANT TO THINK ABOUT. The floods will probably be much worse than the winds. Think about this: there is a foot of water in the air over an area the size of Texas, and most of this water will end up flowing over the Eastern U.S.

EARTH WEATHER PREDICTION FOR THE REMAINDER OF THE YEAR:

After about September 20, things should calm down, relatively, until the Oct 10 of alignment of Mercury | Venus kick up another 10 – 14 days of stormy weather. By October 20 the weather should normalize until right around the beginning of December. December should be pounded with storm after storm, probably producing many records in snowfall and coldness in the Northern Hemisphere, heat and fires in the Southern Hemisphere. The reason is a succession of alignments produced by Mercury, beginning with Venus on November 25. Hopefully the waning of average sunspot counts in Cycle 23 will produce less extremes this coming December than those of December 2002.

GLOBAL DROUGHT AND FLOOD WATCH

Stories and assessments about drought and flood conditions around the world; global information which provides the ability to assess the impacts to agriculture and the natural environment. For additional details, see <http://www.michaelmandeville.com/ebooks/calendar2003>

AS PREVIOUSLY REPORTED: As predicted June 2002, gains are now short everywhere. All harvests have fallen off worldwide. Food prices will rise substantially during the next year. A combination inflationary (increased prices) and deflationary (production and job loss) double whammy will be added to all world economics.

SOUTHWEST CONDITIONS:

for background or more details see

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm/#weather>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

TOO HOT THIS PAST WEEK BUT TEMPERATURES SEEM TO BE FALLING NOW. The cooling trend will probably now slowly kick in.

EUROPE CONDITIONS

Conditions are rapidly moderating and all conditions should become normal in about two weeks.

EL NINO & LA NINA WATCH

watch is now open again; all Pacific water activity is normal, we are between the extremes of the ENSO; but all auguries point to next year for the next onset.

This summer's shape-shifting of the earth, which caused a lot of movement in the oceanic Great Rift, MAY produce a major rise in volcanism during the next few months, which may induce the next El Nino cycle. Watch for an increase in water temperatures to show up close to the Pacific Equator, possibly as early as November this year but more likely along about February – April 2004.

CHEMTRAILS

For information, go to:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports.htm#chemtrails>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

EARTHQUAKES

Around the world to see the current and potential patterns of seismic activity, with coverage of the windows of danger. I prepared this section by pulling out the Earth Changes 2003 Calendar which has everything plotted on it. You should too. Check out the Almanac as well, it discusses all of the windows for the year and even spotlights the two most dangerous windows. Unless otherwise specified, all quake activity which is discussed is based on the USGS database charts and tables which list quake activity in excess of 2.0 and above. FOR MORE QUAKE INFO RELATED TO SYZGY WINDOWS, Jim Berkland calculates syzygy windows with considerably more sophistication than I do. See <http://syzygyjob.com>

Except for the two days following the Full Moon on September 10, major quake activity was generally at low levels in both frequency and magnitude from the prior week, as one would expect from this mostly non syzygy period.

The Full Moon finally caught up with us and true to the Syzygy Window principle, the greatest number of quakes for the past week were last Thursday and Friday, within two days of the Full Moon. Some 35 quakes above 2.5 mag. struck on the 11th, the day after the Full Moon. All the remaining of the last seven days have been highly diminished, quakes 2.5 mag. plus averaged less than 10 per day. There was only one 6.0 quake for the entire period, in the Papua-New Guinea area.

In New Zealand, another round of 15 quakes followed the 11 quakes from the week prior to shake the islands once again – many of these were smaller than was typical of prior weeks. Many more quakes also struck the Fiji and Vanuatu island areas North and West of New Zealand. These all sit on or close to the Eastern edge of the Australian Tectonic Plate and doubtless this edge was once again the world's most active tectonic zone for the week.

Chile was struck repeatedly for several days and Italy was stuck by several in its mountainous backbone. Remaining quake activity over 2.5 mag. was widely scattered almost entirely around the Pacific Rim of Fire.

The shape-shifting Great Rift quakes continued with a 5.5 in the East Pacific Rise and a 5.9 in the Indian Ocean. It would seem that this process is slowly winding down.

CAYCE UPHEAVAL WATCH: AS MADE JULY 23: SPECULATIVE PREDICTION FOR WATCHING AND LEARNING: AS A RESPONSE TO THE JULY/AUGUST SHAPESHIFTING EVENT, WITHIN NEXT TWO to 12 MONTHS VOLCANIC ACTIVITY IN ICELAND, JAN MAYAN, AND ALL VOLCANISM ASSOCIATED WITH THE CARIBBEAN TECTONIC PLATE, INCLUDING THE VOLCANOES IN CENTRAL MEXICO WILL SHOW A MAJOR INCREASE IN EMISSIONS AND ERUPTIVE BEHAVIORS.

TO DATE: no significant response

THE WEEK'S MOST SIGNIFICANT QUAKES

In addition to the 35 quakes which continued to rock New Zealand and the handful which struck at various locations along the mountainous spine of Italy, the most interesting quakes of the week were the two shape shifting quakes around the edge of the Antarctic Tectonic Plate, a 5.9 in the Indian Ocean, and a 5.5 in the East Pacific Rift very near the same location which has been struck several times during the past two months.

Following in line with the Full Moon syzygy window period, quake activity was up in North America slightly over the prior week. The USGS charts (such charts show all quakes 1.0 and above) for the U.S. and Alaska show 421 quakes for the past seven days (up slightly from 410 last week). The USGS chart for California/Nevada shows 245 quakes in California/Nevada during the past seven days (up from 230 from last week). A surprising number of these struck in Nevada, which rarely experiences more than a half dozen during any given week. The Rocky Mountain Cordillera had 25 quakes mostly scattered throughout Utah (up from 15 last week), including one in New Mexico near the Colorado border.

A few struck the Madrid Fault Zone, all close together near the Southern tip of Illinois along the Mississippi River.

All other charts and numbers were contrarian and showed a decrease in seismic activity during the past seven days. The USGS Chart for the Pacific Northwest reveals 20 quakes (two week sum, down from 32 last week) widely scattered throughout Washington State. Hood was silent. The USGS Chart of Yellowstone Caldera Area showed 12 microquakes during the last week (down from 28 last week), tiny 1.0 microquakes widely scattered around the entire area and around the borders of Yellowstone National Park, esp. along the South Rim Border of the park in the same pinpoint location which has sprouted a large number of microquakes during the past few weeks. In the same vein, the USGS chart for Long Valley Caldera (Area) showed a running total of 7 (down from 19 last week).

VOLCANOES

Around the world with the most interesting and relevant volcano stories; briefs on the likely eruptions as well as coverage of on-going activity. For information on current eruptions, see the Southwest Volcano Centre at:

<http://www.swvrc.org/cerupt.htm>

or see "Breaking Volcano Eruption News" at <http://www.volcanolive.com/volcanolive.html>

ARE THE VOLCANIC FIELDS RESPONDING TO THE EARTH'S SHAPE
SHIFTING EVENT OF JULY-AUGUST-SEPTEMBER 2003?

NOT AT THE MOMENT.

World volcanism is doing about as well as human economics. During the past week overall volcanic activity SEEMS to have declined again this week, but the Southwest Volcano Centre reports 36 volcanoes on the alert status list (up from 34 last week), 6 volcanoes on the restless list (samo last two weeks), and 20 on the active eruption list (samo last two weeks).

So, seemingly we have a slight increase in stirrings, but almost all the others on the active list are SO sleepy they are just barely "active".

MOST ACTIVE VOLCANOES (& OTHER NEWS) THIS WEEK:

13 August 2003 from Volcano Breaking News

at <http://www.volcanolive.com/volcanolive.html>

Well, let's see, uh, well, hmmmmmmmm like last week, there is always Popo, just barely.

Popo gave only a 3 puff day, one puff less than last Wednesday. Centrapred reports for September 17 (16:00 GMT) that "In the last 24 hours the monitoring system of Popocatepetl volcano recorded 3 low intensity exhalations, mainly accompanied by steam and gas. The other monitored parameters remain without important changes. At the moment of this report we can not see the volcano, however, this morning we could see it with a steam and gas emission. "

REPEATED ADVISORY ON YELLOWSTONE: Despite the continued spread of "dramatic" information about the volcanic changes at work in Yellowstone, a super volcano eruption is not likely there for quite a while, say tens of thousand of years. The reason is simple. To have enough material piled on top of it to blow ash and debris for great distances, Yellowstone probably needs thousands of years to build up a massive cone like Etna, Mona Loa, or Tahoma. Tahoma (stupid white men misname it Rainier) is much more likely to blow a super eruption from its nearly 15,000 foot pile of lava and ash than Yellowstone is. The eruption to watch for in Yellowstone is an explosive eruption more on the scale of St. Helens and then the extrusion of lava sheets over a period of thousands of years, like Kilauea and Mona Loa, slowly building up a high cone with multiple vents. But we are no where near that condition. It will take probably several months of steadily rising indicators and microtremor swarms to get serious about expecting a serious eruption at Yellowstone. For the meanwhile, Yellowstone settled down this week like all other zones.

ECONOMIC WATCH

For background information, use password to go to:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/ebooks/statusreports/statusreports.htm#economics>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

FORECAST THIS WEEK

use password to go to:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/ebooks/statusreports/statusreports.htm#forecastweek>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

AS REPORTED LAST FEW WEEKS: Americans everywhere are waking up to the fact that the super elite has permanently sliced them out of the economy but the mass media still is fronting phony illusions and hopeful noises from yesteryear's mantras. It will likely take another several months to a year for the poodles in the lapdog press to catch the real drift of our affairs.

Despite this, signs are growing for the true appearance of a small bubble of expansion working through the country. This is showing up in the Western states through expansion of real natural resource production and real technology manufacturing, and also to some extent from the continued influx of urban refugees from both coasts who are causing new homes to be built in the Western ranchlands or forests. But beware, some of this could reflect rising prices for grains and other ag products, for which expansion actually fell this year for many crops.

This bubble is probably good through to at least the end of November. But a lousy Christmas season will probably follow last year's crash, which will send Wall Street herds to doltishly dump their over-valued stocks once again in a December/January downward "correction".

AS PREVIOUSLY REPORTED – LITTLE CHANGE: Bull noises are getting louder and louder and recovery is the current mantra in the economic news. But Bears keep pointing out that there is almost no recovery in job expansion underway, leading them to suggest that the giant international sucking sound in the U.S. economy is just getting louder and louder as the U.S. economy hemorrhages into China.

GENERAL PREDICTION DJI AVERAGES:

for detailed predictions, use password to go to:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/ebooks/statusreports/statusreports.htm#stocks>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

Recent closings of the DJI:

AS LAST WEEK: Not much movement, the stalling continues. Stocks inched upwards today with the DJI closing today, September 17, 2003, was at 9,567, close to 9,503 from last week's Wednesday close. The DJI closed last Friday, September 12, at 9,471 only 51 points over the previous Friday.

AS PREVIOUSLY PREDICTED: Expect sharp mood swings to jack the DJI up and down by 200 points in as little as a few hours. Over all, I believe that the Bear position is more soundly based in today's facts and this position seems to be "closing ranks". Expect only a little real average increase during the next few months. Flat line then, more or less, until after Christmas. Strong Christmas season sales may bring the DJI up a few hundred more points past 10,000 during the first several months of 2004. This may be the last of the "recovery bubble", which will probably break for good by late Fall 2004, just after the elections. After losing the elections, the Imperial Faction cliques who are attempting to hold unto the U.S. government may "give up" the contrivances which are maintaining the "bubble". Thus they may be forced to allow the "masks" to fall away. The winning President (who probably will not be Bush) and the nation will finally realize the truth about an economy which is floundering horribly with a bad case of giant sucking sounds.

EURO WATCH

for detailed predictions, use password to go to:

<http://michaelmandeville.com/ebooks/statusreports/statusreports.htm#euro>

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

three weeks ago one euro = US $0.9215

two weeks ago one euro = US $0.9226

one week ago one euro = US $0.8924

this week, one euro = US $0.8872

Well, you just lost close to another 1/2 cent on the dollar in one week, following losses near 3 cents the prior week..

FIRST CLASS RIGHT ON THE MONEY CALL FROM LAST TWO WEEKS:

Bears are pretty united in supposing that this is as far as the value of the dollar is going to increase. With the growing realization that the Chinese will not revalue their currency, expect the dollar now to soften. Accordingly, NOW IS THE TIME TO SELL DOLLARS. WAS I RIGHT OR WAS I RIGHT????? A MILLION DOLLARS OF MARGINED EURO MONEY WOULD HAVE MADE A WONDERFULLY QUICK DOLLAR KILLING ON THIS ADVICE. WATCH IT DEEPEN. I THINK EVERY ASTUTE PLAYER ON THE WORLD STAGE NOW REALIZES THAT BUSH HAS A DEAD HAND AND THE DOLLAR HAS NO WHERE TO GO BUT DOWN.

MUST READ: “The Dollar Panics” in “The Coming Economic Collapse of 2006”, which lays out the dynamics of what is happening.

see <http://www.michaelmandeville.com/calendar/collapse2006.htm>

JOB WATCH

Job expansion seems to be picking up in the Western U.S.

AS REPORTED: The job situation will probably remain bleak throughout this year unless you have a clean background and are willing to work for less than $10/hr. in the burgeoning security industry or for $7.00 at Wallie World.

UNKNOWN SECRET FACT: Northern Arizona and New Mexico have not suffered much of the recession and continue to expand economically. The economy is driven by people moving in to retire to escape the urban war zones. Good location for contractors, builders, wood products, and new wave or new paradigm shops, health, etc. Inquire of the Quest family.

A SOON TO BE WIDELY DISCUSSED FACT: The battleground for fixing America is Wallie World – Walmart. It has become an insufferable bully by aggregating vast wealth through systematic abuse of American workers. Everything which is wrong about America can be found at Wallie World. To fix America, start there. See Jim Hightower, “Thieves In High Places”, which is a no-holds-barred populist tract.

HEALTH WATCH

– No new status-changing alerts

GEO-POLITICAL WATCH

How are the sunspots likely to most effect human affairs during the weeks and months ahead?

SIGN OF THE TIMES: Ken Lay, who is now widely described as the biggest corporate swindler of all time, is still scott free and has never even been indicted.

IT IS NOW TIME TO ARREST AND SHACKLE THOSE WHO HAVE FAILED TO ARREST KEN LAY (WHO IS ONE OF THE WORST ECONOMIC TERRORISTS OF ALL TIME). THE DAMAGE HE HAS CREATED IN PEOPLE'S LIVES CONTINUES ON TO THIS VERY MOMENT IN SUCH THINGS AS THE CALIFORNIA RECALL CIRCUS.

GLOBAL MEDIA WATCH ON PHONY MANIPULATION:

SAMO AS LAST WEEK, PREDOMINATELY – Arnold the man to beat and Dean, the TV pundit anointed “hottest candidate”, who even this very day is about to be inundated by media punditry anointment of Wesly Clark as “the democrats obvious best choice”. These are entirely phony illusions at best and exercises in class bigotry and racism at worst by a small set of yuppie boomer East coast bubbleheads.

The media sorcery about the invasion and the war is now rapidly unraveling. Discussion of Iraq, war, the weapons of mass destruction, Bush, his policies, is now widely and routinely referred to as lies. Al Frankton seems to have caught the wave just right on that with his book “Lies and the Lying Liars Who Tell Them”. There are now scores of populist book titles cropping up everywhere from many print publishers which are building up a massive tidal wave of agit prop and information to drown the right wing nuts and their Imperial Faction.

The latest wave of media sorcery about how well the economy really is secretly doing was met nearly universally with skeptical yawns and none of the mantras invented by the Republicrats are being given much play. This is the Hoover syndrome, there comes a point when you are publicly called “a miserable failure” and there is not much recovery from that point. A year ago Gephard’s statement (Bush is a miserable failure) would have brought forth a thousand snarling right wing attack dogs denigrating Gephard’s every action since Kindergarten. But they are so overwhelmed these days, Gephard’s remarks are just being ignored by the wing nuts. Bush is clearly broken as a credible politician, his cause seriously sullied by a succession of stupid acts and monstrous whoppers which even the wing nuts can no longer cope with, his legions taking leave, his administration now fading rapidly into increasing incoherence.

The psychological stress may engender such increasing stress among top circles that serious moves to get Bush to allow others to caretake the White House may emerge early next year. Top corporate globalists may seek to bring forth a new Republicrat candidate to christen. Yet Bush is so insular and oblivious in his conceit as THE man of God in this last crusade before the End Time, he may be dumb enough to ride the Republicrats all the way into the ground.

“IONIZING SOLAR ACTIVITY” & MASS BEHAVIOR

AS FORECAST LAST WEEK ABOUT MASS BEHAVIOR: Random acts of senseless violence will continue to abate.

THE STRATEGIC SITUATION:

For predictions related to the mess in Palestine, the Middle East, and the Bush political era, check out http://www.michaelmandeville.com/earthmonitor/ecbulletins/statusreports_political.htm#strategic

(watch the word wrap on the URL)

The inability of the Western nations to create a solution in Palestine is a precise measure of the failure of the Western mind to cognize reality.

THE CENTER OF THE WAR ON TERRORISM IS IN PALESTINE. THE WAR MUST BE FOUGHT THERE PRIMARILY BY MAKING PEACE THERE.

Guns will not achieve the solution to the war. Almost all the Arabs and Muslims in the world will tell you that, if you listen. They know what they are talking about.

Western culture appears to be utterly exhausted both emotionally and intellectually and no longer knows how to engage real people in making real solutions for their lives. So public discussion in Israel has been reduced to whether or not to kill Arafat. In Iraq, discussion is on one hand reduced to giving ludicrous sums of money to plutocrats to create their version of democracy and freedom for corporate elites in the deeply socialist society of Iraq. On the other hand, discussion is reduced to whether or not the U.S. should cut and run after quickly handing off power to a committee of hastily dragooned Iraqi "leaders".

The problem with the West lies in the poverty of its own human social relationships. The West is at war with itself. The super rich insist that there are no social relationships which are anybody's business except business by profiteers. The poor wander around leaderless, clueless, wondering why they are so screwed up. To keep their game going, the main art of governance which the super rich oil plutocrats of Bush's Imperial Faction have learned is deception, lying, and gross manipulation of people by the expenditure of huge sums of money.

The Iraqi society is thoroughly socialistic on the Stalinist model, based on sharing the oil money. Plutocratic crony capitalism will never succeed in the country, all it will do is bring down massive resentment and the same result which the plutocratic Shah of Iran brought down, an extreme religious revolution on the right, or what Hussein originally created, a Bolshevik takeover from the left.

Take your pick, that is some of the depth to the quagmire in Iraq. It is real deep and you can fall into it for a hundred years of struggle. Do you want to start easing into it what is left of American affluence?

The only solution to both Palestine and Iraq is a massive national public employment mobilization of men and women, based on the simple idea that we should care about each other and in fact that there is a plenty of resource based on the oil in the Middle East to create real solutions and real states which can support democratic institutions so that we can take care of one another. One million employed Palestinians and two million employed Iraqi's, paid for out of oil proceeds, banked by Saudi interests, administered by Euro and American engineers, would radically alter the situation within a few weeks and send an huge wave of prosperity within months rippling throughout the Middle East to turn the rest into producers and merchants. Within a year it would be hard to find anyone in Palestine interested in bombs and Israeli merchants and professionals would be so eager to get into the action, the peace accords could finally be made.

Funny, the ancients knew how to do this. The real empire builders knew how to do this. Jefferson knew how to do this. The charismatic communists knew how to do this. Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower and MacArthur knew how to do this a generation ago.

But national mobilization schemes are anathema to the spoiled rich kids who have inherited power in the West and understand little of how the world was put together. They would lose their cover for privateer plundering of governments, markets, and communities. Worse, if national mobilization schemes were admitted to be effective and worthy tools, they would lose their entire ideological argument for why the public should allow ultra-wealthy cliques to plunder all the wealth and economic opportunity. Even worse, they would have to begin to discuss how to make things genuinely fair for all people.

But as things stand, saddled with a managerial "leadership" class which actively represses such discussions, the American and British people are left as patsy's standing around waiting for the ax to fall. Here it is. THIS IS THE AX. Bin Laden and Al Qaeda has George Bush and the American Imperial Legions exactly where he wants them. The die has been cast by the emotional reactions which were engendered during the high peak of Sunspot Cycle 23. The Al Qaeda War Plan has successfully set and baited its trap in the Mid East and the Imperial Faction has walked right in with scarcely a second thought.

Now the Likud Faction in Israel is walking right in to fan the flames with their discussion of killing Arafat. We knew Bush was shy a full deck but this makes even Bush look good. Can God rescue the Jews from such Gevaldt! levels of stupidity?

Last week I asked: "The big question mark is the X factor. It's out there, is it Al Qaeda? What's the next step in their plan to drive Americans into increasingly blind emotional reactivity similar to the overbearing and violent tactics (putting many bystanders in harms way) which Israel is using to strike Hamas officials?"

Killing Arafat will do just fine, thank you very much Jerusalem Post.

As stated last week: Once again, Bin Laden has scored a major victory based on his assessments of the mind and character of the American elite and how it is likely to act internationally. He has succeeded in fulfilling his strategic war plan. He has successfully united radical groups from Morocco to Indonesia to work in concert against all Euro and American interests and he has succeeded in drawing the U.S. into a vast guerilla war stretching from Gaza to India by trapping American troops into a thankless and bloody occupation of Iraq and Afghanistan. In this war the U.S. will never GAIN anything as the guerillas slowly force a greater and greater mobilization of American resources into a widening black hole of greater and greater violence.

GET THIS:

AMERICANS SET UP BIN LADEN TO WAGE EXACTLY THIS TYPE OF STRATEGIC WAR OF ATTRITION AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION IN AFGHANISTAN. THE CIA "SCHOOLED" BIN LADEN AND MANY OF HIS HENCHMEN ABOUT MANY ASPECTS OF CONDUCTING SUCH A LONG TERM STRUGGLE. IN THE COURSE OF THIS, BIN LADEN CAME INTO INTIMATE KNOWLEDGE OF HOW THE AMERICAN MILITARY MIND WORKS AND THE LOGIC OF ITS OPERATIONS METHODS. THE SOVIETS NEVER

LOST A SINGLE BATTLE IN AFGHANISTAN BUT THE COST OF CONTINUAL FIGHTING OVER MANY YEARS BLED THE RUSSIANS SO EFFECTIVELY THAT IT CONTRIBUTED TO GORBACHOV'S DECISION TO PULL BACK THE SOVIET UNION AND LET THE COMMUNIST EMPIRE COLLAPSE.

YOU DON'T SUPPOSE, DO YOU, THAT IT MIGHT OCCUR TO BIN LADEN TO USE THE SAME STRATEGY AGAINST THE AMERICANS?

The current debate about the huge cost of spending more money in Iraq, the so-called $87 billion or whatever phony number is being used, IS IRRELEVANT.

THINK. AND TAKE ACTION TO INSURE A COMPLETE STRATEGIC REGIME AND ORIENTATION CHANGE IN THE MANAGEMENT OF AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. And for God sakes I hope you don't lend support to two-timing Republicrat Senators. Who among them is not seriously ethically challenged with the whoppers they have been living with this past generation in their support and feeding of the expansion of the not-so-invisible Black Arts Nation? Damn few.

REPEAT FROM LAST WEEK: Expect a larger escalation yet during the next 15 days in ORGANIZED PROFESSIONAL TERRORIST violence, active guerilla warfare with bombings and sabotage. There after, a major protracted war will now be professionally fought with escalating violence quite aside from sunspot numbers and emotional reactions.

We are bouncing around right now in just the beginning phase of the rapids in this turn of the river. It will take all of September to get through this stretch of transformation. Keep meditating or praying to keep your center of balance in the Higher Being.